Press Release – Cliff Rieders & Sean Gingerich Teach at Beasley School of Law

Cliff Rieders and Sean Gingerich taught on the subject of medical malpractice at the invitation of Professor Samuel D. Hodge on Monday, November 29, 2021. The class, for senior law students, was intended to introduce students to what Cliff Rieders has called in other presentations, “The Intersection Between Law and Medicine.” The course covered concepts frequently encountered in the setting of medical malpractice such as peer review, testimony of doctors, expert opinions, important evidentiary concepts and a host of other issues. Sean Gingerich spoke concerning fires in operating rooms. Many legal principles are invoked when there is a fire or explosion in an operating room, a “never event” which unfortunately, still does occur.

Rieders is a nationally Board-certified trial lawyer admitted in numerous states and federal courts including the United States Supreme Court. He is the author of numerous textbooks, including Medical Malpractice in Pennsylvania, and teaches at a number of educational institutions and for educational providers. Sean Gingerich is an experienced trial lawyer working in medical malpractice as well as other fields.
